4. Deferred revenue expenditure as that expenditure for which payment has been made or a liability incurred, but which is carried forward on the presumption that it will be of benefit over a subsequent period or periods. "In short, it refers to that expenditure that is, for the time being, deferred from being charged to income. Such suspension of 'charging off' operation may be due to the nature of expenses and the benefit expected therefrom.

Deferred revenue expenditure should be revenue expenditure by nature in the first instance, for example, advertisement. But its matching with revenue may be deferred considering the benefit to be accrued in future.

The benefits available from prepaid expenses can be precisely estimated but that is not so in case of deferred revenue expenses. Heavy advertising to launch a new product is a deferred expenses since the benefit from it will be available over the next three to five years but one cannot say precisely how long.

Deferred expenses are considered fictitious assets but prepaid expenses are considered as current assets.

- 12. The term 'commission' may be defined as remuneration of an employee or agent relating to services performed in connection with sales, purchases, collections, or other types of business transactions and usually based on a percentage of the amounts involved. The various examples of commission include the following:
- (a) Commission to selling or buying agents.
- (b) Commission to brokers and bankers for services rendered.
- (c) Commission to property dealers for assistance in renting out properties or for services in connecting with purchase/sale of properties.
- (d) Commission to export-import agents in foreign trade.

Commission earned is accounted for as an income in the books of the beneficiary and Commission allowed is accounted for as expenses or deferred revenue expenditure in the books of the party availing of such facility.

Discount The term 'discount' is used to express one of the following situations:

- (a) An allowance given for the settlement of a debt before it is due, that is, cash discount.
- (b) An allowance given to the wholesalers or bulk buyers on the list price or retail price, known as trade discount.
- (c) The excess of par or face value of shares or debentures over the amount paid by subscriber, that is, discount on issue of shares or debentures.
- (d) The amount charged by a bank on discounting of a bill of exchange.

Discount earned is accounted for as an income in the books of the beneficiary and discount allowed is accounted for as expenses or deferred revenue expenditure in the books of the party availing of such facility.
